Subject: Walsh

I think it would be helpful for everyone, if the members of the planning board would weigh in on whether they are going to allow this or not. To continue to string this out, based upon some communication with neighbors, doesn't seem sincere if the planning board is not going to approve it based on the current bylaws. Town counsel gave their opinion. Does the board want to go against that opinion? The Walshs are spending time and money pursuing something that may not happen anyways. And we as neighbors are getting put in a very strange position that we are not comfortable with.
